The next generation air transportation system (NextGen) is an ongoing multibillion-dollar modernization of the national airspace system (NAS) in the United States. The Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) began working on NextGen improvements in 2007 and plans to have all major components in place by 2025. The goals of the modernization include using new technologies and procedures to increase safety, reduce costs, and improve efficiency. The joint planning and development office (JPDO) was established in 2003 to plan and coordinate the development of the NextGen air transportation system. The JPDO is a multi-agency public-private initiative to include the Department of Transportation, the United States Department of Defense, the Department of Homeland Security, and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA).
