The Bombay Cat Breed Profile

The Bombay cat has the distinction of being the blackest cat in the cat fancy. Once the cat is mature, the coat is black to the root short, tight and extremely shiny. Even the paw pads are black. As with the Bengal and the Savannah cat, the development of the Bombay cat breed stemmed from a desire to have a miniature version of a wild cat. In this case, a sleek black panther. The inspiration for the name of the breed comes from the black leopard of India.
